5. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow:

Malaria is caused by a germ that grows in the patient's blood. When a mosquito bites a man who has malaria, it sucks up into its stomach some of the man's blood. There are malaria germs in his blood, and when the mosquito bites another man, it injects into his body some of these malaria germs, and this soon results in an attack of fever. But not all mosquitoes carry malaria. The malaria mosquito can be distinguished by the appearance of its body and by its position when standing on something. To prevent the spread of malaria, all that is necessary to do is to destroy the mosquitoes. The most effective way is to prevent their birth. Mosquitoes do not grow in flowing water. So ditches should be properly drained. It is also useful to spread kerosene oil on the surface of the water. The use of DDT in rooms has proved to be very useful.
